Let's Start!

Pronunciation Spot: Honestly, joining a choir is out of character!

Learning Outcome

Exchange information about people's interests and backgrounds using a wider range of language.

Can Do Statements

- I can say and use words like character.
- I can speculate about things, people and events.
- I can stress new information.

Ask your partner:

- Do you have a passion that your friends find strange? What is it?
- Have you ever seen a psychic? Do you think they are accurate? Why or why not?

Let's Explore!

Peter saw a psychic! Did she predict his future or did she rip him off?

* When you "rip someone off" you take money from them without giving them good service.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

- Matt: Hey Peter! How have you been? Any luck with the girls since the last time we spoke?
- Peter: To be honest, I have no idea anymore. I've tried everything: online dating, speed dating, spending hours and hours in all the comic book stores in town ... Honestly, nothing seems to work. So, last week I decided to see a psychic.
- Matt: Are you serious? That sounds totally out of character! You must be really desperate at this point! So, what did she see in her crystal ball?
- Peter: Very funny! She came up with a whole list of new activities I should try, actually. She said that I might find the girl of my dreams in a song.
- Matt: What does that even mean? She must be crazy!
- Peter: I don't know about that, but I followed her advice and joined a choir.
- Matt: You did what? You must be completely crazy, too.
- Peter: It's a lot of fun, believe me. We practice every weekend in a big concert hall. I love how our voices echo in that huge space. The feeling is incredible.
- Matt: It must make you feel good, I guess. Anyway, was the psychic right in the end?
- Peter: Well, there's this girl ...
- Matt: Please tell me you have her number!
- Peter: Almost. She whispered in my ear when we were singing, so I couldn't hear the last digit.
- Matt: She must be waiting for you to call her then!
- Peter: It's alright. I tried every combination until I got it right!

Let's Practice!

Peter is telling Mike about his experience with the psychic.

Instructions: Read the clues on the left. Put a checkmark in the box in the table that describes what Peter is referring to. There is only one answer per clue.

	People	Event	Thing
1. She must have been right, because I met a girl in a choir.	1.
2. I must have been really desperate at this point.	2.
3. It must have made you feel good I guess.	3.
4. The psychic's office must have been a really beautiful place 10 years ago.	4.
5. Our conversation must have lasted very long, it was dark when I left the place.	5.

Let's Practice!

I visited a psychic and it was fun!

Instructions: Organize the mystery sentence. Write the sentences in the correct order. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. decided / last / a / week / I / So, / to / psychic. / see

Learning Points

The Silent h Sound

You don't say every letter in a word in English pronunciation. Some letters are silent, which means that you don't hear them as you would pronounce them normally.

In words like honest, hour, or honor, the letter h is silent.

In words like character or choir, the letter h is also silent. It does not combine with another consonant to produce a consonant blend.

Here are examples of the silent letter h in words. Practice saying the example sentences.

Letter	Words	Pronunciation
Silent h	honest	onest
	hour	our
	psychic	psykic
	choir	kwire
	echo	eko
	whisper	wisper

Examples:

- To be honest, I have no idea anymore.
- So last week I decided to see a psychic.
- That sounds totally out of character!

Learning Points

Linking and Deletion with Must

If a word ends in a consonant +/t/ and is linked with another word beginning with a consonant, the final /t/ letter is dropped. This frequently occurs when using the word must.

If you delete the final /t/, the sound before the /t/ must link smoothly into the next word.

You must be happy = You mus_be happy

When the word have follows must, have is reduced to "_ov" or "_av". The 't' sound joins the reduced have.

must have = mus_tuv or mus_tav

Practice saying the words in the chart.

Phrase	Pronunciation
must find	mus_find
must be	mus_be
must have thought	mus_tuv thought mus_ta thought
